41st Anniversary Sale

Uncle Hugo's is the oldest surviving science fiction bookstore in the United States. We opened for business on March 2, 1974. To encourage you to help us celebrate Uncle Hugo's 41st Anniversary, we're having a sale. Come into either Uncle Hugo's or Uncle Edgar's and get 10% off everything except gift certificates. A discount card will save you even more—you'll get both the 10% savings from the sale and the 10% savings from the discount card. (Sale prices apply to in-store sales, but not to mail orders.)

The 41st Anniversary sale lasts Friday, February 27 through Sunday, March 8. That gives you two weekends to take advantage of the sale.

| Angus, Chris | Flypaper (PBO; When a 2000-year-old mummy is unearthed in China, scientists mistakenly release a disease with extraterrestrial origins that turns people into mindless monsters. An expedition to extract a much older mummy, which could help formulate a cure, turns up an ancient burial object that may hold the key to ending the apocalyptic epidemic). $14.95 |
| Archer, Alex | Death Mask (Rogue Angel #52: PBO). $6.99 |
| Armstrong, Kelley | Visions (Cainsville #2: Olivia finds a dead woman in her car, dressed to look like her, but the body vanishes before anyone else sees it. Olivia is convinced it's another omen, until she learns that a troubled young woman went missing days ago - the same woman Olivia found dead. Someone went to great lengths to kill and leave this young woman as a warning. But why?). $26.95 |
| Arnason, Eleanor | Hidden Folk: Icelandic Fantasies (In Iceland's meadows and mountain crags dwell the Hidden Folk, magical beings from the age of the Vikings. In these 5 tales, ordinary folk cross paths with elves and trolls, heroes and magicians, vengeful ghosts, a were-puffin, and the devil himself) $24.00 |
| Asher, Neal | Dark Intelligence (Polity: Transformation #1: Thorvald Spear was trapped on a world surrounded by Prador forces when Penny Royal, the AI inside the rescue ship sent to provide backup, turned rogue, annihilating friendly forces and killing Spear. 100 years later, Spear wakes to find he's been brought back from the dead. The AI is still on the loose, and Spear vows revenge at any cost) $26.99 |

| Brissett, Jennifer Marie | Elysium (PBO; Philip K. Dick Award finalist. A computer program etched into the atmosphere has a story to tell. It's the story of two people, of a city lost to chaos, of survival and love - but the data has been corrupted). $18.00 |
| Bujold, Lois McMaster | The Spirit Ring (Reissue; Fantasy novel set in an alternate Renaissance Italy, where the church regulates magic and licenses magicians). $19.99 |
| Cole, Adrian | The Shadow Academy (PBO; A hundred years after the Plague Wars, the Central Authority in Londonborough wields control rigidly and clinically, and the development of industry and technology is strictly vetted. Into the cauldron of intrigue and subterfuge that is the town and Academy of Petra comes Chad Mundy, the Authority's replacement for a veteran teacher who committed suicide - at least, that's what Mundy has been told). $15.95 |
| Connolly, Harry | The Way Into Chaos (Great Way #1: Peradain - the heart of an empire built with steel, spears, and a monopoly on magic - is overthrown by a swarm of supernatural creatures of incredible power and ferocity. Can the prince, pursued by the beasts that killed his parents, cross battle-torn lands to retrieve a spell that might turn the tide of battle against this enemy?). $15.99 |
| Connolly, Harry | The Way Into Magic (Great Way #2: Having lost the prince to the madness of The Blessing, only Tejohn and Cazia know of the plan to retrieve a spell that might turn the tide of battle. But Tejohn's body is broken, and Cazia has been stripped of her magic. Worse, both are being held captive. As they struggle for their freedom, The Blessing continues to spread). $13.99 |
| Connolly, Harry | The Way Into Darkness (Great Way #3: The Peradaini Empire is now a wasted landscape. But a piece of stolen magic might halt the Blessing's spread. If Tejohn and Cazia can find a scholar with the skill to recreate the spell. If such a person still lives. And where did the Blessing come from, and why have they invaded?). $15.99 |
| Connolly, Harry | Twenty Palaces (Twenty Palaces Prequel: When Ray was 13, a handgun accident landed his best friend Jon in a wheelchair, and turned Ray into a runaway and petty criminal. 15 years later, Ray returns home, determined to go straight and make peace with his old friend. But Jon has received a mysterious cure - not only is he out of his wheelchair, he seems stronger and faster than pretty much |

How's Business by Don Blyly

Sales this winter have been up quite a bit compared to last winter (although nothing to brag about compared to 2, 3, or 4 years ago), in part because of less severe winter weather. Also, thanks to everyone who gave their friends and relatives Uncles gift certificates for the holidays. We saw some new faces in January, ready to spend their gift certificates, and hope they will be back to shop again. And, as always, many thanks to our customers for braving the winter cold and gloom to enliven our winter doldrums and help keep the business going. Thanks to the 60 or so people who decided to switch from the paper newsletter to the electronic version, which will save us about $300 per year in expenses. And thanks also to those who chipped in to help cover the cost of their paper newsletters. I'm more optimistic about the business now than I was a year ago.

We've had some problems other than sales. The afternoon I was supposed to go out to the printer to pick up the previous issue of the newsletter, somebody broke 2 windows on my van while it was parked behind the store. There wasn't anything very valuable in the van, and I have no idea why the thief had to break 2 windows to grab the jumper cables (which he then threw under the van, rather than taking them away) and a pair of gloves (which he did take away). The insurance company arranged for replacement of the windows. The glass company used windows that were not from the original manufacturer, and that was no problem with the back window, but the window for the sliding door behind the driver's door was off by about 1/8 of an inch, so that the driver's door scraped against that window every time it opened or closed. It was so hard to open the driver's door from the inside that the inside handle broke, so I had to roll down the window (when it wasn't frozen shut) and use the outside handle and a strong push on the door to get it to open. It took over a month and three tries before the glass company finally got things fixed correctly.

Three days after the broken glass incident, a drip from the ceiling started in the back room about 4:30 pm. About 6:15 pm a second drip started in another location in the back room. We hadn't had any leaks during the summer, but in the winter enough snow can pile up to stress the roof and open tiny cracks. And the heat leaking up through the ceiling can produce a lake underneath the heavy layer of snow. I keep a snow shovel with a blade of soft plastic for such times, and I spent most of the night alternating between moving buckets in the back room and trying to clear snow and water from the roof. The first two leaks did not hit any books. Around 9 pm a third leak started above a shelf full of books. Around 10 pm a fourth leak started above another shelf full of books. By 4 am there were about 10 leaks scattered around the back room. Around 8 am I finally got all of the roof cleared, and the leaks stopped dripping. It was obviously time for a new roof. It took about a month to get 4 bids, and the highest (and first) bid was almost twice the lowest (and fourth) bid for the same type of roof. I accepted the fourth bid, but there was another problem. The adhesive for the roof will only work if the temperature is 30 degrees or warmer, and we were in the middle of a long cold spell. So it was about another month before we had a January thaw and the work could get done, which meant another month of taking the snow shovel up to the roof whenever we had more than flurries. We had a few more drips during that month, but didn't lose any more books. Now the new roof is in place, with a lot of new insulation, and hopefully the problem is solved for at least another 15 years. And it only cost a little over $8000 that I had not expected to have to spend.

Six days after the night of many leaks, I started feeling a little light-headed in the afternoon. After closing the store for the night, I went home and had supper. After supper, I got a pins-and-needles feeling as if novacaine was wearing off on my upper and lower lip, but only on the left side. I did some quick checks to see if I might be having a stroke, but everything seemed fine. The next morning I still had the tingling lips on the left side and a little light-headedness. I went up on the roof to do some shoveling, and when I came back down I had tingling to my left arm from just below the elbow to the fingertips. I did some quick checks again for stroke, but everything seemed fine. In the afternoon, I still had all the tingling going on and was feeling more light-headed, so I took off to urgent care, where it was discovered my blood pressure was quite high (unusual for me) and that the top chamber of my heart was mis-firing about every fourth to every eighth beat. The doctor also ran more checks for a stroke, but everything seemed fine except for my heart. I was told to go to the emergency room if things got significantly worse, and to go to the clinic for a check-up in the next few days if things stayed the same. The next morning I woke up with the tingling in my left arm going from just below the shoulder to the fingertips, and the tingling on the left side of my face going from the chin up to the cheek bone. I again ran the quick checks for stroke and everything seemed fine. I took an aspirin and the tingling went back to what they had been the day before, so I went in to work. After about 4 hours, the tingling had spread again, so I walked the 3 blocks to the emergency room and described what was going on. Instead of being told to go to the waiting room, they rushed me in. My blood pressure was again quite high, and I again passed all the quick checks for a stroke. They drew some blood, and then did an MRI of my head and neck, which showed blood flow in my brain and in my neck was fine. After about three hours they referred me for more medical tests in the future, and released me. I went back to the store to handle the end-of-day stuff, and the tingling became even worse, and I kept dropping stuff from my left hand because I wasn't getting enough feedback from the nerves in my left hand to be sure of what I was holding or how tightly I was holding it. Over the next two days, the tingling and the light-headedness just faded away and has not come back. But I've been going through so many tests to try to determine what caused the problem and what should be done about it. I've learned that I have a small hole between the left side and the right side of my heart, and that it used to be that doctors wanted to operate when they discovered such a situation. But they eventually discovered that between 15% and 25% of the population have this condition, and that taking an aspirin a day (as I had been doing for over 20 years) produced results just as good as the heart surgery, but with a lot less expense or pain. I learned that my heart was mis-firing between 1% and 2% of the time over a 24 hour period, but that it has to get up to about 15% of the time before a pace-maker is called for. But the tests (and the bills for the tests) just keep coming.

Getting back to the bookstore business in general, the statistics are a little confusing. For the first 11 months of 2014, bookstore sales dropped every month while retailing in general was up 3.9%. For the entire year, bookstore sales dropped 4.5% compared to 2013 (when sales dropped 4.9% compared to 2012). Retailing in general went up 4.0% for 2014 over 2013. But unit sales of print books went up 2% in 2014. Unit sales of print books bottomed out in 2012 before increase each of the last two years. And e-book sales were pretty flat in the U.S. for 2014.

Borderlands Books of San Francisco announced that they are going out of business as of the end of March. They report that sales in 2014 were the best they've ever had, but the voters in San Francisco approved in November a referendum to increase the minimum wage to $15.00 per hour. Borderlands has both the bookstore and a café next door, and the café will be able to stay in business because they can raise their prices to cover the increased overhead, and all their competition will also be raising their prices to cover the increase in the minimum wage. But bookstores sell books with prices printed on the cover by the publisher, so it is not possible for a bookstore to raise their prices to cover the increase in wages. Seattle has also been talking about Melissa F. Olson will be signing at Uncle Hugo's on Friday, April 10, 5-6 pm. Melissa has an urban fantasy trilogy set in Los Angeles featuring Scarlet Bernard. Scarlet can nullify any magic within 10 feet, and is often called in by the supernatural communities to clean up crime scenes before the police can discover the evidence. The series consist of Dead Spots ($14.95), Trail of the Dead ($14.95), and Hunter's Trail ($14.95). Her next urban fantasy novel, Boundary Crossed (new series, $14.95), is officially a May release and we don't know if we'll be able to get copies in time for the April signing event.

Kelly McCullough will be signing at Uncle Hugo's on Saturday, May 9, 1-2 pm. Kelly has two fantasy series, the 5 book Webmage series and the Fallen Blade series, with Darkened Blade (#6, $7.99) coming early May.

Sharon Lee and Steve Miller have a new Liaden Universe novel, Dragon in Exile ($26.00) coming at the beginning of June. We've arranged to have Sharon and Steve to sign a couple hundred copies and ship them along to us. If you order from our website by May 1, you can also get your copy personalized if you like. If you wait until after May 1, you'll have to settle for just a signed copy—until we run out of signed copies.

David Weber, Timothy Zahn, and perhaps Eric Flint will be in Minneapolis May 22-24 for the Manticon, a convention celebrating military science fiction. (Go to www.Manticon.org for more information about the convention.) We might be able to set up a signing at Uncle Hugo's while they are in town, but nothing is confirmed. Watch our website for more information.

National Independent Bookstore Day is Saturday, May 2. Everybody is encouraged to visit at least one independent bookstore on that day, and buy something as long as you are there surrounded by books. Come in on National Independent Bookstore Day, spend $50 or more, and get a free Uncle Hugo's/Uncle Edgar's bookbag.
