Parking

Metered parking (25 cents for 20 minutes) is available in front of the store. Meters are enforced 8am-6pm Monday through Saturday (except for federal holidays). Note the number on the pole you park by, and pay at the box located between the dental office driveway and Popeyes driveway. The box accepts quarters, dollar coins, and credit cards, and prints a receipt that shows the expiration time. Meter parking for vehicles with Disability License Plates or a Disability Certificate is free. (Rates and hours shown are subject to change without notice - the meters are run by the city, not by us.)

Free parking is also available in the dental office lot from 5pm-8pm Monday through Thursday, and all day Friday, Saturday, and Sunday.

How's Business? by Don Blyly

Assorted reports all indicate that sales of print books are up, sales of audiobooks are up a lot, and sales of e-books are down, and this is true not only in the US but worldwide. A lot of the sales of audiobooks are direct downloads, which helps support the authors and the publishers, but cuts out the bookstores. Direct downloads of music have hurt retail stores for many years, and it's not a surprise that the same thing has happened with audiobooks.

The reports I've seen indicate that sales at independent brick and mortar bookstores are up slightly, while sales at chain bookstore are down slightly. But all brick and mortar stores (including restaurants) are having a tough time, with many national chains closing stores like crazy to try to avoid bankruptcy. (For all of retail, the national chains have announced 3200 store closings so far this year, with some experts forecasting 8600 store closings by the end of the year by national chains. Expect to see lots more empty store fronts in shopping malls.) Here at the Uncles, some months have been up a little compared to last year, some months have been down. In-store sales have been down with increases in mail order sales making up for the slower in-store traffic.

In other book news, the House of Representatives is rushing through a bill to make the Register of Copyright a political appointment. The Register of Copyright has been a non-political appointment made by the Librarian of Congress, but now the House of Representatives wants to make the position a presidential appointment, with confirmation by the Senate. The people pushing this plan claims that the intent of the bill is to "modernize" the copyright office (which everybody agrees needs to be done), but there is nothing in the bill about modernizing the copyright office. The suspicion is that major entertainment corporations are behind the move, hoping that making the position a political appointment will give them more influence, to the detriment of authors, artists, and musicians.

The Florida legislature is pushing through a bill to make it easier to ban books in public school. Not only will parents be able to say, "I don't want my kid to read this book", but "activists" without kids in a school district will be able to say, "I don't want any kids to read this book". Opponents point out that the law makes it easy to ban books in public schools (supported by tax dollars) but not in charter schools (also supported by tax dollars) or private schools. School district officials are not looking forward to having their time wasted dealing with attempts to ban books, especially from "activists" who don't even have kids in the district.

A Manhattan principal has decided to get rid of all textbooks. In a school where last year only 5% of the 6th to 8th graders passed state math exams and only 9% passed state English exams, the principal has ordered all the textbooks to be disposed of, because textbooks are "antiquated". Now they are going to do things the modern way, with computers. But there are only 2 computers in most classrooms, and not all of them are connected to the internet. Now, the teachers hand out worksheets, show videos, and give no homework assignments. And advise the students to grab books from the piles waiting for disposal and take them home before the books can be destroyed.

One recent British university study found that reading fiction makes people more empathetic. Another study found that children who grow up in home that have books in them tend to make more money when they become adults.

Short Recommendations by Don Blyly

The Gathering Edge by Sharon Lee and Steve Miller ($25.00, signed copies available) is the twentieth book in the Liaden Universe series. That means that you should not start the series with this book, but rather with The Agent Gambit ($12.00, contains Agents of Change and Carpe Diem) and then work your way through this excellent space opera series. For those who have been following the series, The Gathering Edge is a very good addition to the series. Theo Waitley and her crew on the AI spaceship Bechimo discover that in addition to the debris leaking through from another universe, whole spaceships that have been trapped in time are leaking through from the other universe, including a spaceship with some precursors to the Yxtrang and a spaceship with only an intelligent tree on board. Plot threads that have been spun out in the last half dozen books are starting to come together.

It's been 35 years since P.C. Hodgell's first novel in the Kencyrath series, Godstalk, was published. The Three-Faced God brought together the Kencyrath peoples 30,000 years before the start of Godstalk to fight the chaos of Perimal Darkling. Since then they have retreated from planet to planet as Perimal Darkling consumes the planets. They retreated to the planet Rathillien three thousand years before the start of Godstalk, but are still in conflict with the native peoples and gods of Rathillien. The main character of the series, Jame, is a Highborn woman of the Kencyrath who suspects that she is one of the three Tyr-Ridan that prophecy says the Three-Faced God will use in the final battle with Perimal Darkling. The series as now published consists of The God Stalker Chronicles ($7.99, contains Godstalk and Dark of the Moon), Seeker's Bane ($7.99, contains Seeker's Mask and To Ride a Rathorn), Bound in Blood ($7.99), Honor's Paradox ($7.99), and The Sea of Time ($15.00). The newest volume, The Gates of Tagmeth ($16.00, due early August), is a fine addition to this excellent fantasy series. While the author did a very good job of providing reminders of what has gone before, it had been 3 years since I read the previous book and I think it might have been better if I had re-read the previous book before starting the new book. There are the nine houses of the Kencyrath, with plots between the houses and within the houses, plus the various native groups with their plots, plus the local gods, and just a whole lot of names to try to keep straight. While I enjoyed The Gates of Tagmeth without re-reading The Sea of Time, I have to wonder how many clues I missed because I no longer associated This Name with That Plot.

The Rise and Fall of D.O.D.O. by Neal Stephenson and Nicole Galland ($35.00, due mid-June) is interesting not only for the story, but also how the story is told. In modern Boston, a young woman who is a low-level faculty member in Harvard's Department of Ancient and Classical Linguistics meets a man from a shadowy government agency who offers her a large amount of money if she will sign a nondisclosure agreement and translate a bunch of old documents for him. She signs on, ditches a job and a department chairman she can't stand, and becomes part of the shadowy D.O.D.O., which she eventually learns stands for Department of Diachronic Operations. It seems that magic used to work, but its effectiveness began to wane with the scientific revolution and it died completely in 1851. Something about the modern world "jams" the "frequencies" that allow magic to work, and D.O.D.O. is supposed to figure out a way to make magic work again, so that the military can use magic to alter historical events to bring about changes in the present. The story is told by various diary entries from various time periods, correspondences, e-mails, transcripts of congressional hearings on black ops funding requests, and (my favorite) a PowerPoint presentation by an MBA efficiency expert sent in by the Pentagon, who doesn't understand either the theory or the practice of D.O.D.O but insists that he knows how to "secure the future of D.O.D.O. by aggressively monetizing its unique skill set". The military and political people in Washington never view things the same way that the people actually doing the work in Boston see things, and even the people in Boston never fully realize the extent to which the people from the past are working towards their own goals instead of D.O.D.O.'s goals. Which leads to things like a Viking raid on a Walmart store.

Robert Conroy wrote a large number of alternate history novels which I enjoyed. He died of cancer at the end of 2014, but he left behind a partial novel, which was completed by J. R. Dunn. The Day After Gettysburg ($25.00, due early June) postulates that after the battle of Gettysburg, General Lee tries to return his army to Virginia but the Potomac is too high to ford. So he attacked the disorganized pursuing troops of General Meade and achieves a victory. From that point, Lee controls a large portion of Pennsylvania. Meanwhile, John Wilkes Booth is building an organization of supporters to engage in sabotage, espionage, and plotting against Lincoln. I'm not sure how much of the story was finished by Conroy, but the writing style and the use of characters feel like the other Conroy books.

The Courier by Gerald Brandt ($7.99) is a fresh example for not judging a book by its cover. It shows somebody in black leather jacket and black helmet riding a motorcycle. At least at Uncle Hugo's you would realize that it must be science fiction, which wouldn't be true at most stores. It didn't look at all interesting to me, or to most of our customers. But the author was visiting from Canada and stopped into the store to sign stock and talk about the book. I decided to try the book, and I've now moved it to our recommended sf display. In 2140, the world is run by the major corporations, and the major corporations have black ops squads to deal with their competitors. California from San Francisco to the Mexican border is one huge city, with 7 levels of construction. Only the corporate elite are allowed in the top 2 levels, and the residents of the lower levels never see the sky. Because of the dangers of hacking, the major corporations don't send their important data through the internet—they use courier services, and 90% of the courier runs are transporting either false data or no data, so that the other corporations won't know which couriers to try to intercept. Kris Ballard is a 16-year-old orphaned street kid from level 2, working as a motorcycle courier. One night her run is hit by a corporate black ops unit, and she barely escapes with her life, and her information package. Soon she is the target of other black ops units. ACE is an underground anti-corporate organization that learns of what's going on. They'd love to get their hands on Kris's information package to find out what has the big guys so stirred up, but they assume Kris will be killed by one of the black ops units. As Kris barely avoids death repeatedly, they decide that it might be worth trying to save her as well as getting the information package. As the action continues, we see a lot more of southern California, the low-level corporate warfare which one corporation wants to escalate, and what the package really contains. The sequel, The Operative ($26.00), starts 9 months after the end of The Courier, after Kris has joined ACE, gone through their boot camp, and is ready to join the fight against the corporations. The third in the series, The Rebel, is scheduled for November release.

The Kill Society by Richard Kadrey ($25.99, due in June) is the ninth book in the Sandman Slim series, and I enjoyed it more than any of the books since the first one. Sandman Slim is back in hell again, but this time it's because somebody murdered him on Earth. Death has placed him directly in the path of the havoc, a collection of Hellions and lost souls being lead on a crusade by a ruthless con artist who calls himself the Magistrate. He can either join the havoc or die (again), so he joins the havoc. There are a few lost souls among the havoc who knew him back on Earth, but they go along with the false identity he made up on the spur of the moment, and he tries to figure out what the purpose is for the crusade, what the Magistrate really wants, and how he does what he does. Lots of wise-cracking, profanity, and violence ensues. The story line is nicely tied up just in time for a teaser for the next novel.

The Gods of Sagittarius by Eric Flint and Mike Resnick ($25.00) is a space opera with a humorous feel to it. Russ Tabor is a cranky security specialist who is assigned, much against his will, to protect an eccentric genius who likes to style himself "Lord Shenoy" on a mission to the planet Cthulhu. I found the alien characters more interesting and more amusing than the human characters. People who enjoy Keith Laumer's Retief series are more likely to enjoy this book than are fans of hard sf. It has the feel of being the first of a series.

Monster Hunter Siege by Larry Correia ($25.00, due early August) is a delight. There are a lot of authors who are good at writing action stories, but nobody does it with Larry's sense of humor. The Monster Hunter series has some books in the main story arc and some books that follow particular characters. The last book in the main story arc was Monster Hunter Legion, where the monsters and the monster hunters destroy much of the Las Vegas Strip. The next book, Monster Hunter Nemesis, followed Agent Franks. At the beginning of Monster Hunter Siege the survivors of Las Vegas are trying to heal enough (with help from an orc witch doctor) to go on another mission, while the physical damage caused by Agent Franks is being repaired. MHI's top monster hunter, Owen Z. Pitt, learns that some of the hunters that are missing in action from the battle in Las Vegas may still be alive, but are being held captive in a nightmare dimension by the powerful creature behind the attack in Las Vegas and a number of other attacks. He starts planning a rescue mission, which snowballs into the largest single operation in MHI history.

Pirate Freedom by Gene Wolfe ($9.99) was a fun adventure story. After the communists lost power in Cuba, the main character's father is sent from New Jersey to oversee a casino. The son is sent to a Cuban monastery, but years later when he leaves the monastery he finds that he has fallen back in time three centuries, and he eventually becomes a pirate. Much of the book demonstrates how well Wolfe researched the period, historical characters, ship construction, etc., before coming to a less than satisfying resolution of the time travel component of the story.

Maslakovic, Neve -- The Bellbottom Incident
$13.99 (Olsen & Kirkland #3: Julie and Nate are facing their toughest challenge: their adopted niece from the lost city of Pompeii has gone missing, in the bellbottom decade of all places, with the only clues to her whereabouts hidden in a Vonnegut novel.)

McLemore, Anna-Marie -- When the Moon Was Ours $18.99 (Ages 12 and up. Tiptree Award winner. Everyone thinks best friends Miel and Sam are as strange as they are inseparable. Roses grow out of Miel's wrist. Sam is known for the moons he paints and hangs in the trees, and for how little anyone knows about his early life. Now the Bonner girls, four sisters rumored to be witches, want the roses that grow from Miel's skin, convinced that their scent can make anyone fall in love. And they're willing to use every secret Miel has fought to protect to make sure she gives them up.)

Nesbit, E. -- Horror Stories $15.95 (Before she became a famous children's author, Nesbit wrote for adults, including the ghost and horror stories collected here.)

Olson, Melissa F. -- Midnight Curse $14.95 (Disrupted Magic #1: Molly, a vampire, had been living with human college students - and in one terrible night she slaughtered them all. Scarlett Bernard believes Molly has been set up, but no one else agrees with her. Scarlett has less than two days to prove her friend's innocence.)

Reeve, Philip -- Railhead $10.95 (Ages 14 and up. Andre Norton Award finalist. Zen is a petty thief who aimlessly rides the sentient trains that travel from planet to planet. Then a mysterious stranger offers him the chance of a lifetime. All he has to do is steal one small box from the Emperor's train. But that little box might just bring everything in this galaxy and the next to the end of the line.)

Robeson, Kenneth -- The Mystic Mullah / Terror Takes 7 (Bama cover) $14.95 (Doc Savage #46: Pulp reprints.)

Rowell, Rainbow -- Carry On $10.99 (Ages 13 and up. Simon Snow is the worst Chosen One ever. That's what his roommate Baz says. Baz might be a vampire, and evil, but he's probably right. Half the time Simon can't make his wand work, and the other half he starts something on fire. Not good, especially with a magic-eating monster running around at the Watford School of Magicks.)

Scalzi, John -- The Dispatcher $28.00
(Novella. It has become almost impossible to murder anyone - now nearly everyone who is intentionally killed comes back to life. It changes everything: war, crime, daily life. Tony Valdez is a licensed professional whose job is to humanely dispatch those in death's crosshairs, so they can have a second chance to avoid the reaper. When a former friend is apparently kidnapped, Tony learns that there are some things that are worse than death, and that some people are ready to do almost anything to avenge what they see as a wrong.)

Tchaikovsky, Adrian -- Children of Time $14.95 (Arthur C. Clarke Award winner. The last remnants of the human race left a dying Earth. Following their ancestors' star maps, they discovered a world terraformed and prepared for human life. But all is not right in this new Eden - new masters have turned it from a refuge into humanity's worst nightmare.)

Baldwin, Kathleen -- Exile for Dreamers $9.99 (Stranje House #2: Ages 13 and up. 1814:
Napoleon has escaped from Elba, Europe is in shambles, and Britain is at war. The traitorous Lady Daneska and the Ghost have returned to England to pave the way for Napoleon's invasion. Can the young ladies at Stranje House use their paranormal abilities to thwart them?)

Black, J. Patrick -- Ninth City Burning $16.00 (The aliens came, bringing a weapon that devastated cities in the blink of an eye.
It seemed nothing could stop them - until humans discovered they could wield the power too. Centuries later, Earth is still locked in a war of attrition, and those who refused to support the war have been exiled to the wilds.
But the enemy's tactics are shifting - and heroes will rise from unlikely quarters to fight back.)

Brennan, Marie -- Lightning in the Blood $11.99 (Varekai #2: Novella. Ree, now a roaming archon, has spent her last innumerable seasons orbiting the lands of her friend Aadet, who has become involved in his people's post-revolution politics. Then Ree falls in with a wandering band accompanied by their own archon, who seems to know much more about Ree's own origins than Ree does.)

Charnock, Anne -- Dreams Before the Start of Time $14.95 (Near-future London: Millie and Toni experience the aftershocks of human progress as their children and grandchildren embrace new ways of making babies. A man can create a child without a woman, a woman can create a child without a man, and artificial wombs eliminate the struggles of pregnancy. But what does it mean to be a parent? A child? A family?)

Clapham, Mark -- Tyrant of the Hollow Worlds

$17.00 (Warhammer 40,000: Space Marine Battles: The Red Corsairs have seized the Hollow Worlds of Lastrati, and are well entrenched by the time the Space Wolves arrive. Will the Hollow Worlds be destroyed by the forces that have been unleashed?)
