Parking

Metered parking (25 cents for 20 minutes) is available in front of the store. Meters are enforced 8am-6pm Monday through Saturday (except for federal holidays). Note the number on the pole you park by, and pay at the box located between the dental office driveway and Popeyes driveway. The box accepts quarters, dollar coins, and credit cards, and prints a receipt that shows the expiration time. Meter parking for vehicles with Disability License Plates or a Disability Certificate is free. (Rates and hours shown are subject to change without notice - the meters are run by the city, not by us.)

Free parking is also available in the dental office lot from 5pm-8pm Monday through Thursday, and all day Friday, Saturday, and Sunday.

How's Business by Don Blyly

We are once again participating in the Hennepin County "Choose to Reuse" program. The coupon book has coupons for many stores that carry used merchandise, as well as companies that rent equipment or repair stuff. The deals vary from store to store, but 20% off for used stuff is most common. The coupons are valid August 1 to October 31, 2017. We have a display of the coupon books right inside our front door, but they are also being distributed at Hennepin County Libraries and many other Hennepin County locations. It's also supposed to be possible to download the coupons with a smart phone, but I don't think we had a single person use a smart phone coupon last year. The coupons are only good for in-store purchases, not for mail orders.

Back in the late 1970s I was working on a Ph. D. in marketing and researched, wrote, and presented to the department some papers on channels of distribution in the book business. At this point, I have no idea where those papers are at, but a customer recently asked how there can be so many award winners and finalists that never made it into mass market paperback. This made me think that there might be a lot of people who'd be interested in learning a little about history of the channels of distribution in the book business.

Once upon a time all of the major publishers published hardcovers only. After they had bought, edited, printed high quality hardcover editions, and promoted the books, they would sometimes sell subsidiary rights to another company (such as Grosset & Dunlap or a book club) to print cheaper editions, and the original publisher would keep half of the subsidiary rights money for themselves and pass the other half along to the author (or the author's agent). But the big money for the author was from the sales of the original hardcover, and any subsidiary income was a minor part of their income.

In the mid 1930s, Allan Lane started Penguin Books in the United Kingdom to reprint books as inexpensive paperbacks that would fit into a pocket for the mass market. Many of the major publishers were sure that he would be out of business in a few years, and sold him subsidiary rights cheaply. He sold enough copies of the first batch of titles to Woolworths to pay for the entire print run, and sales took off. He had printed one million books in the first 10 months.

In 1939 he entered the U.S. market, but something strange happened here. The major publishers in the U.S. sold directly to book stores (quite different from our current idea of bookstores, they were often part of department stores, and frequently ran rental libraries as well as selling hardcovers), while the magazine publishers sold to "rack jobbers" who supplied the racks and the printed contents to drug stores, grocery stores, hardware store, tobacco stores, dime stores, etc. The buyers for the bookstores needed to understand what was popular among their customers and also had to handle returns to the publishers when they guessed wrong. The owners of drug stores, etc., didn't have to know anything about the printed material or worry about returns. The delivery guys for the rack jobbers took care of what went onto the shelves and took care of returning the out-of-date magazines. Penguin decided that in the U.S. they were going to stick to the book store channel exclusively, even though it had been the mass distribution that made them so successful in the U.K. But lots of people in the U.S. had been watching what Penguin had done in the U.K. and decided that going for the mass market in the U.S. was the way to go. In 1939 Pocket Books was launched, and they went with the rack jobbers for widespread distribution and ignored the bookstores. All of the other U.S. mass market publishers that followed Pocket Books also went with the rack jobbers.

The rack jobbers insisted that the paperback publishers had to do business on the same terms as the magazine publishers, which included accepting stripped covers for returns rather than demand the return of the full book—after all, a magazine publisher didn't want to deal with truckloads of 3-month-old issues showing up at their warehouses. Because of paper shortages and other kinds of rationing during World War II, returns didn't become much of an issue until after the war.

There were two channels within the rack jobbers: American Distribution (a national chain that owned warehouses in every major market and bought stock for the entire country from a single location) and I.D.s (independent distributors, locally owned in each major market, each of which bought stock for just the local market). Around half of the magazines were distributed by American Distribution, the other half were distributed by the I.D.s, and likewise American Distribution handled distribution for about half of the mass market companies and the I.D.s handled distribution for the other mass market companies. Because each distributor handled only half of the magazines that people wanted, most stores had racks from both distributors. (When I opened Uncle Hugo's, there were still a few guys around who started working as delivery drivers during this period, when one distributor handled Time and the other handled Newsweek, when one handled Look and the other handled Life, and they had some entertaining stories to tell about each driver trying to hide the magazines of the other distributor while giving better display to the magazines of their employer.)

American Distribution was a publicly traded corporation, and its income looked reasonable for its asset base. But it had owned warehouses near the center of every major city, and the warehouses had all been depreciated down to the value of the bare land back before 1920. Some sharp guys on Wall Street figured this out in the early 1950s and realized that American Distribution was worth a whole lot more if you closed it down and sold off the real estate, so they bought it, fired everybody, and made a huge profit selling the warehouses. Suddenly, half the magazines and half the mass market paperbacks had no distribution. The I.D.s suddenly were in a stronger negotiating position, but could not double the size of their warehouses to take on all of the new potential business. So each I.D. decided which weak magazines to stop carrying so that they could add on much stronger titles. And I wouldn't be surprised if significant amounts of cash changed hands under the table while this was going on.

(When almost half of the magazines in the country suddenly went out of business due to lack of distribution, it resulted in hard times for huge numbers of editors, writers, artists, and production people.)

When I was growing up in Peoria, Illinois, there were a couple a bookstores that carried a large selection of mass market paperbacks, lots of magazines, Hallmark cards, and some gift items, but no hardcovers other than bibles. Both were owned by the local I.D. To get a selection of hardcovers, you had to go to a department store book department. Other than the stores owned by the local I.D., you could find mass market paperbacks at the college bookstore, all the drug stores, all the grocery stores, etc. When I went to college at Champaign-Urbana, Illinois, there was a bookstore that carried lots of mass market paperbacks, lots of magazines, Hallmark cards, and some gift items, owned by the local I.D. When I moved to Minneapolis in 1973 I was surprised to find lots of independent bookstores that were not owned by the local I.D., but they all got their books and magazines from the local I.D. When I opened Uncle Hugo's I went to the local I.D. and I was told that they were the only place that I could buy books (not true), but they supplied all my book and magazine racks for free, they accepted returns, and at first they also allowed me to go through the returned science fiction and fantasy mass markets from stores out in the Dakotas, which often included Ace Doubles and other books that had been out-of-print for many years. After a few years, I discovered The Bookmen, a local book wholesaler that offered mass market paperbacks and hardcovers at a much better discount, but did not accept returns and did not provide free racking, and I shifted most of my book business to them, until I got to the point that it was worth doing business direct with the publishers.

The other thing that Minneapolis had at that point was B. Dalton Booksellers. It was started at Southdale Center by the Dayton's department store, and at first it had a very elitist idea about what book buyers wanted, and at first sales were very poor. They shifted over to a more mass market mix of books, and things took off. As they expanded nationwide, they became such an important part of the market that publishers had to sell to them, which broke the power of the I.D.s. Many local I.D.s had refused to allow publishers to sell mass market paperbacks directly to bookstores in their territory, so that the bookstores had to buy mass market paperbacks from the I.D.s. But once B. Dalton came to town, the publishers were eager to sell directly to all of the bookstores in the territory.

When Uncle Hugo's started (and more importantly, national bookstore chains took off), the money the authors made from mass market sales began to exceed the money from the hardcover sales, and they didn't like the hardcover publishers taking half of the mass market money. On the other hand, if they sold the book to a mass market company, they wouldn't get distribution to the libraries, wouldn't get reviewed, and would not get the potential hardcover money. At that time, there was almost no overlap between the hardcover companies and the mass market companies, but that started to change as the authors realized that they could make a lot more money if they sold hardcover and paperback rights to the same company. Hardcover companies started either buying paperback companies or setting up their own paperback lines; paperback companies started printing hardcovers. Before long, most books were sold in hardcover/paperback deals, and the chances of a book being printed in mass market paperback went way down unless it was sold to a publisher that had a mass market publishing arm.

Today, lots of books are being published by small publishers that don't have a mass market line, and mass market companies almost never buy reprint rights to books that were originally published by another company. And the major publishers that include mass market lines are putting a lot fewer titles into mass market, thinking they will make more money in trade paperback (where they will charge at least double the price per book with only a slightly larger printing cost than for a mass market paperback). We frequently tell salesmen from the major publishers, "We'll take 2 copies of this title in trade paperback, but if it were in mass market we would have taken 10 copies." One salesman responded, "If your customers prefer mass market paperbacks, you must be the only bookstore left in the country where that is true", because that's what the home office in New York City has been telling him.

I recently read that 355 issues of Galaxy magazine from 1950 to 1976 had been posted to <https://archive.org/details/galaxymagazine&tab=collection> and I went to take a look. The issues I looked at were images from magazines where the pages had turned very brown. I would find it much easier to read the stories directly from the actual magazines, but if I was looking for only a few stories and didn't have the original magazine available, I can see how this would be useful. I then looked at the other stuff available on archive.org, and found 459 science fiction/horror movies (mostly black & white), 292 comedy films (mostly black & white, including lots of Charlie Chaplin), 1205 silent films, 4147 classic tv episodes, 199,176 NASA images, and lots of other stuff that could claim way too much of my time if I allowed it to.

I ran across an article about a bookstore in Portugal that possibly inspired J. K. Rowling's Hogwarts. The bookstore is so amazing that they charge three euros to enter the store and look around, but the admission fee is refunded to anybody who buys a book. It's worth looking through the photo slideshow and reading the article at <https://www.popsugar.com/smart-living/Harry-Potter-Bookstore-Portugal-42816387>

Ecko and I came over to the store for a few hours on the 4th of July to work on some mail orders, after which she wanted a walk around a couple of blocks. She was attacked by a pit bull we had never seen before, and we both ended up with some puncture wounds, but we have both fully recovered.

Sales tax is going up by .25% on October 1 for both Hennepin and Ramsey counties. For mail orders, the tax rate is figured when we ship the order, not when you place the order.

Short Recommendations by Don Blyly

Provenance by Ann Leckie ($26.00, due late September, signing at Uncle Hugo's Monday, October 2, 4-6 pm) is set in the same universe as Ancillary Justice ($16.00, winner of both the Hugo and Nebula Awards for best novel in 2014), Ancillary Sword ($16.00), and Ancillary Mercy ($15.99), but it is not set in the Radch Empire. Instead, we see human cultures from three very different human planets that have not yet been "annexed" by the Radch, plus one alien race. It is very good, and could be read without having read the three Ancillary books.

I've read and greatly enjoyed two more books in Jodi Taylor's British madcap time travel series, The Chronicles of St. Mary's: Lies, Damned Lies, and History (#7, $12.99) and And the Rest is History (#8, $12.99). There continue to be lots of laugh-out-load bits in Lies, Damned Lies, and History, as there were in the first six books. And the Rest is History has only a few funny bits, and ends with a cliffhanger. The next book in the series, The Long and Short of It ($12.99, due mid-November) is a collection of 8 short stories at St. Mary's, so I guess I have a long wait to find out what happens next.

Two issues ago I mentioned that Dark Victory by Brendan DuBois ($7.99) was a good story with bad proof-reading. I'm happy to report that the sequel, Red Vengeance ($16.00) is also good, but this time proof-reading was practiced. Sixteen-year-old Sergeant Randy Knox and his K-9 Thor are still fighting the war against the aliens who invaded Earth several years before. The good guys have found a way to defeat the aliens, in spite of the attempts by the government to keep the war going. In this volume, the good guys find out how determined certain people in the U.S. government are to keep the war going.

Straight Outta Tombstone edited by David Boop ($16.00) is a collection of Weird Western short stories. I normally don't read many short stories or Weird Western books. But the book starts with a Larry Correia story about the roots of the Monster Hunters International and ends with a Jim Butcher story set in the Dresden Files universe, so I gave it a shot. Of course, the Correia and Butcher stories were quite good, but I also found most of the other stories quite good. Not good enough to race off to find the novels that the other short stories were related to, but good enough to enjoy the stories on their own.

- Pullman, Philip La Belle Sauvage $22.99 (Book of Dust #1: Ages 14 and up. The first of three volumes, telling a tale that begins when Lyra is a baby and will end when she is grown up. At the center is the struggle between a despotic totalitarian organization that wants to stifle speculation and inquiry, and those who believe thought and speech should be free.)
- Robertson, Al Waking Hell $13.99 (Station #2: Station is humanity's last outpost. It's also where the dead live on as fetches, digital memories and scraps of personality give a sort of life. Leila is dead, and so is her brother. She won't stop searching until she finds his fetch, but as she searches it becomes clear he'd been mixed up in something very dark, and there's far more than her brother's afterlife at stake.)
- Schmidt, Bryan Thomas (ed) Infinite Stars $22.95 (Anthology. A who's who of space opera and military sf writers contribute original stories set in their most famous series.)
- Schmidt, Bryan Thomas (ed) Predator: If It Bleeds $14.95 (Anthology. Original stories featuring the Predators throughout space and time.)
- Shirley, John Eclipse $14.95 (Song Called Youth #1: Reissue; The US economy has crashed, and the Soviet Union has invaded western Europe. When NATO collapses, governments turn to an antiterrorist security firm, the Second Alliance, whose fascist mercenaries have a hidden agenda. Their only challenge comes from the New Resistance, rebels who battle mind control and weapons of mass destruction with sex, drugs, and rock and roll.)
- Stewart, Sean Galveston $17.95 (Reissue; A flood of magic swept over Galveston. Isolated from the rest of the world, without electricity or outside resources, the residents carry on in two separate worlds, the 'normal' half and Carnival, an endless celebration populated by monsters, where miracles abound. But the community leaders who guard the gates between the two halves are aging, and their system is faltering.)
- Stirling, S.M. The Sea Peoples $28.00 (Change #14: The spirit of Prince John has fallen captive to the power of the Yelolow Raja and his servant the Pallid Mask. Captain Pip and Deor Godulfson must lead a quest through realms of shadow and dream to rescue Prince John.)
- Tamaki, Mariko Unicorn Power! $14.99 (Lumberjanes Novel #1: Ages 10 and up. Illustrated novel. When challenge-loving April leads her friends on a hike up the tallest mountain they've ever seen, they trespass into the lands of the ancient Cloud People. And did anyone happen to read those ominous signs posted at the base of the mountain? Also, unicorns.)
- Thorpe, Gav Lorgar: Bearer of the Word $19.00 (Warhammer 40,000: Horus Heresy: Primarchs: Most devoted of all the primarchs, it was Lorgar who first fell to the lure of Chaos, and found himself an outcast because he worshipped his father as a god. But he was not always a zealot, though his path would be nurtured by one: the priest Kor Phaeron.)
- Vande Velde, Vivian The Princess Imposter $16.99 (Ages 8 and up. Hijinks ensue when a prankster fairy switches places with a perky princess for three days.)
- Willis, Connie A Lot Like Christmas $17.00 (Collection. Twelve holiday stories, including five original to this collection.)

- Alexander, K.C. Nanoshock $7.99 (Riko #3: Riko's hard-won reputation has taken a hard dive. She still doesn't know what she did to screw up so badly, and chasing every gone-cold lead is only making it worse. Losing ground fast, Riko will break every rule of the street in her search for answers, or die trying.)
- Alexander, Karl Time After Time $8.99 (Reissue; H.G. Wells uses his time machine to pursue Jack the Ripper to 1979 San Francisco, where he must save the city - and a lovely young woman - from the depraved killer.)

- Baker, Richard Valiant Dust $25.99 (Breaker of Empires #1: As a starship's new gunnery officer and the only Kashmiri officer, Sikander Singh North must constantly prove himself better than his Aquilan crewmates. When they are called to help with a planetary uprising, he will have to earn his unit's respect, find out who's arming the rebels, and deal with the daughter of the colonial ruler.)
- Beagle, Peter S. The Overneath $15.95 (Collection. New and previously uncollected fantasy tales from a master of the imagination.)
- Bowen, Lila Malice of Crows $25.00 (Shadow #3: Rhett has shut down a terrible enterprise run on the blood of magical folk, but failed to catch the dark alchemist behind it. And now the Shadow refuses to let him rest. To save his friends, and the lives of countless others, Rhett will first have to lead them on a mission more dangerous than any they've faced.)
- Brandt, Gerald The Operative $7.99 (San Angeles #2: Kris and the other anti-corporate trainees are recalled to San Angeles, but their transport is shot down, and Kris' lover Ian is captured. As Kris searches for any sign of him, the corporations battle civil unrest and each other, and the city slowly shuts down.)
- Brookmyre, Chris Places in the Darkness $15.99 (On the space station Ciudad de Cielo, there's a lucrative underground economy for rival gangs. The authorities turn a blind eye, until a disassembled corpse is found. As cop Nikki Freeman and government agent Alice Blake investigate, they come to question their own memories, and realize that gang warfare may not be the only violence.)
- Buettner, Robert The Golden Gate $7.99 (When the world's richest man falls victim to a car bomb, the attack is attributed to terrorists. But was he targeted because, as rumor has it, he was about to fulfill people's dreams of longevity?)
- Caruso, Melissa The Tethered Mage $15.99 (Swords & Fire #1: In the Raverran Empire, those born with magic are taken as children, conscripted into the Falcon Army. Zaira has lived her life on the streets to avoid this fate; her rare and dangerous magic threatens the Empire. Lady Amalia, heir and scholar, was born into a treacherous political world. Fate binds the heir and the mage as war looms on the horizon.)
- Cervený, Catherine The Rule of Luck $14.99 (Felicia Sevigny #1: 2950: Incredible tech is available to all, and enhancements to appearance and ability are commonplace. Felicia Sevigny reads the futures of others, and Alexei Petriv, the most dangerous man in the TriSystem, will trust only her to read his cards. Now the future she sees pits them against an all-knowing government, superhuman criminals, and something from Felicia's past.)
- Chabon, Michael et al The Escapists graphic novel $19.99 (Full color graphic novel. A tale of three aspiring comics creators with big dreams, little cash, and publishing rights to one forgotten Golden Age hero: the Escapist.)
- Chee, Traci The Speaker $19.99 (Sea of Ink & Gold #2: Ages 12 and up. Archer is now hunting impressors and freeing the boys they hold captive, while Sefia continues to investigate the secrets of the mysterious Book. As Archer's battles threaten to turn him into a grim warrior with a cruel destiny, they look for a way to subvert the Guard's plans and prevent a war between kingdoms.)
- Clarke, Cassandra Rose Magic of Wind and Mist: The Wizard's Promise / The Nobleman's Revenge $17.99 (Omnibus reprint of 2 fantasy novels, 1 previously published and 1 original to this volume.)
- Clarke, Neil (ed) More Human than Human $17.99 (Anthology. Stories of androids, robots, and manufactured humanity.)
- Cline, Ernest Ready Player One $9.99 (2044: To avoid the ugly realities of the world, most of humanity spends their time jacked into the OASIS, a virtual utopia. Including Wade Watts, who is obsessed with winning control of the OASIS and its founder's fortune by solving the riddles scattered throughout. Then Wade unlocks the first puzzle, and finds himself embroiled in a desperate race to claim the ultimate prize.)
- Cole, Myke Siege Line $7.99 (Shadow Ops Prequel #3: PBO; The Gemini Cell took everything from James Schweitzer: his family, his Navy SEAL career, his life. He knows the only way he can ever stop running, the only way his son can ever be safe, is to take the fight to the enemy and destroy the Cell once and for all.)
- Corey, James S.A. Babylon's Ashes $16.99 (Expanse #6: The Free Navy has crippled Earth and begun a campaign of piracy and violence among the outer planets. The colony ships are easy prey. No single navy remains strong enough to protect them, and the embattled old political powers call on the Rocinante for help. But the new alliances are as flawed as the old. And as the chaos grows, an alien mystery deepens.)

Crowley, John Ka: Dar Oakley in the Ruin of Ymr $28.99 (Dar Oakley, the first Crow in all of history with a name of his own, was born 2000 years ago. When a man learns his language, Dar finally gets the chance to tell his story.)

Danielewski, Mark Z. The Familiar Volume 5: Redwood $27.95 (PBO; On a September night, an unexpected phone call demanding the return of the little white cat challenges everything the Ibrahims hold dear.)

Day, David Heroes of Tolkien $15.99 (A look at the complexities surrounding Tolkien's portrayal of good and evil, analyzing the most celebrated heroes from the earliest days of Arda to the end of the War of the Ring.)

de Abaitua, Matthew The Red Men $7.99 (Nelson used to be a radical journalist. Now he works for the company making the androids that police London's streets. They also make Red Men - entirely virtual corporate workers. Nelson is in charge of a virtual city inhabited by copies of real people, where humanity can be studied in simulation. But the project's goals are becoming more authoritarian, and the boundaries between the city and the real world are breaking down. With revolution against the Red Men imminent, Nelson is forced to choose between community and the corporation.)

Dickson, Gordon R. None But Man $16.00 (Reissue; The Old Worlders of Earth and the colonists of the Pleiades Planets have formed an uneasy peace. But for former Rebel hijacker Culihan O'Rourke, peace will not last long - the alien Moldaug have returned, and are demanding the Pleiades Planets.)

Drake, David The Spark $25.00 (Into the gaps between settlements, and onto the Road that connects all human reality and the reality that is not human and may never have been human, have crept monsters. Some are men, twisted into inhuman evil; some are alien; and some are things hostile to all life, which will raven and kill until they are stopped.)

Ellis/Hulse/Weinberg (ed) The Art of the Pulps $49.99 (A comprehensive illustrated history of pulp magazines - the stories and their writers, the graphics and their artists, and the publishers, their market, and their readers.)

Feehan, Christine Leopard's Blood $7.99 (Leopard #10: PBO; Joshua's instincts give him an edge in the violent underworld of the Louisiana swamplands, but even the watchful leopard inside him isn't prepared for the danger that comes from the girl next door, who can create beauty out of thin air.)

Fisher, Carrie The Princess Diarist $16.00 (Hugo finalist. Excerpts from her handwritten notebooks reveal what happened on the set of the original Star Wars movie, and what developed behind the scenes. Fisher also ponders the joys and insanity of celebrity, and the absurdity of Hollywood life.)

Flint, Eric The Ottoman Onslaught $7.99 (Ring of Fire: 1636: The Turks are determined to capture Vienna, armed with new Grantville-inspired weapons, and with the advantage of having studied the failings and errors of their own campaigns in a future they can now avoid.)

Forstchen, William R. The Final Day $9.99 (John Matherson #3: After defeating the designs of the alleged federal government, Matherson and his community have gone back to working on restoring technologies and social order. Then large portions of the US are ceded to China and Mexico, and the remains of the US Army are deployed to suppress rebellion in the remaining states.)

Foster, Alan Dean Strange Music $27.00 (Pip & Flinx: An old friend pulls Flinx and his minidrag Pip out of retirement to track down the missing daughter of a powerful chieftain from a planet that only recently started trading with the Commonwealth.)

Foster, Amy S. The Rift Frequency $24.99 (Rift Uprising #2: What Ryn and Ezra discovered was enough to start a civil war. When Ezra gets caught in the fray, he is accidentally pushed through the Rift, along with a stolen laptop that could give Ryn a lot of answers. Now all Ryn wants is to locate Ezra and get back to her Earth.)

Friedman, C.S. Dreamweaver $7.99 (Dreamwalker #3: Jessica's efforts to unlock the secrets of the past will soon ignite the flames of an ancient war, as the dead and the undead gather to fight their final battle against the Dreamwalkers, with Jessica and Isaac on the front lines, and the fate of her entire homeworld at stake.)

Gaiman, Neil et al Harlequin Valentine $12.99 (Reissue; Full color graphic novel. A buffoonish Harlequin gives his heart to the sensible Columbine, only to see it dragged obliviously about town - but a charming surprise awaits the pair before the end of their journey.)

Gardner, James Alan All Those Explosions Were Someone Else's Fault $17.99 (Sparks are champions of weird science, fighting an eternal battle for truth and justice - mostly. When a freak accident transforms Kim and her housemates into Sparks, they struggle to master their new abilities - and design cool costumes and come up with great names. When it turns out that 'accident' was just the first salvo in a Mad Genius' latest scheme, it's up to the newbie heroes to save the day.)

Godfrey, Daniel	New Pompeii $7.99 (New Pompeii #1: NovusPart saved most of the people of Pompeii minutes before the volcano erupted, and plunked them down in an isolated replica city. Historian Nick Houghton has been chosen to study them. He soon realizes that NovusPart is underestimating their captives. The stage is set for the ultimate clash of cultures, in which time itself is a weapon.)
Gosciny/Uderzo/Ferri	Asterix and the Race Through Italy $17.99 (Asterix #37: Ages 7 and up. Full color graphic novel. Join your favorite Gauls on their latest adventure.)
Goulding, Laurie (ed)	The Silent War $9.99 (Warhammer 40,000: Horus Heresy: Anthology. Harrison, Kim	The Turn $7.99 (Hollows Prequel: When plague rises, paranormal species have a choice: stay hidden and allow humanity to die, or show themselves in a bid to save them. As rivals Trisk and Kal try to convince paranormal leaders to act, Trisk fights the biases of two societies to prove that humanity has something to offer.)
Hill, Joe	Strange Weather $27.99 (Collection. 4 short horror novels. Signed copies expected)
Hines, Jim C.	Terminal Alliance $26.00 (Janitors of the Postapocalypse #1: The Krakau came to invite humanity into an alliance of sentient species, arriving on Earth after a plague had wiped out half the humans, and mutated the remainder into shambling monsters. The Krakau tried to fix them. A century later, humans are not what they once were, but they're mostly no longer trying to eat everyone they meet. Mops is bright (for a human), and in charge of the sanitation team. When a bioweapon attack wipes out the Krakau command crew and reverts the rest of the humans to their feral state, only Mops and her team are left with their minds intact. As they struggle to keep the spaceship functioning and find a cure for their crewmates, they stumble onto a conspiracy that could threaten the entire alliance - born from the truth of what happened on Earth all those years ago.)
Honeywell, Antonia	The Ship $14.99 (London is burning, and Lalla has one hope for survival - a ship that can save only 500 people.)
Hunter, Erin	Thunder and Shadow $7.99 (Warriors: Vision of Shadows #2: Ages 8 and up. The vicious group of rogues that drove out SkyClan has traced Alderpaw's path back to the territories around the lake, and ShadowClan may be the next to fall.)
Hunter, Erin	Darkest Night $16.99 (Warriors: Vision of Shadows #4: Ages 8 and up. SkyClan has returned to its place among the warrior Clans, hoping to find a new territory to call home. But not every cat is convinced this is where SkyClan belongs.)
Hurley, Kameron	The Stars Are Legion $16.99 (On the outer rim of the universe, a war has been waged for generations to control the Legion, a mass of decaying world-ships. Zan wakes with no memory, prisoner of people who say they are her family. She finds she must choose sides in a genocidal campaign, and learns that she carries the seeds of the Legion's destruction - as well as its possible salvation, if she and the cast-offs she gathers can survive long enough to deliver it.)
Jones, Darynda	The Trouble with Twelfth Grave $26.99 (Charley Davidson #12: Charley is busy trying to domesticate the feral being that used to be her husband, keep her friends' startup PI business out of trouble, and deal with the Vatican's inquiries about her daughter. And now someone has started attacking humans who are sensitive to the supernatural world.)

- Kadrey, Richard The Wrong Dead Guy $14.99 (Coop #2: The Department of Peculiar Science sends Coop and his pals to steal a sarcophagus containing the mummy of a powerful Egyptian wizard. It's an easy heist, but it turns out the mummy wasn't exactly dead. Now it's escaped, and Coop's boss expects him to save the world again.)
- Lackey/Mallory Blade of Empire $27.99 (Dragon Prophecy #2: For centuries, the Elves have hunted the Otherfolk, considering them beasts. But Runacar has discovered they have a complex society, and has undertaken to help them reclaim their lands from his former friends and allies.)
