	The Mongoliad Book I (1241: The Mongols have swept across Asia and are poised to invade Europe. A small band of warriors, inheritors of an ancient secret tradition, conceive a desperate plan up on the book buying they couldn't do during the winter. With the unusually early spring this year, people were able to get to work on outdoor projects much earlier than usual, and didn't have to catch up on their book buying from the winter season because they were able to buy books all winter long. As a result, our spring sales were disappointing. I think that there were also fewer exciting new books being published in the spring than normal, which contributed to the problem. But there are a lot of exciting new books coming this summer, so we'll hope that sales will pick up.

I talked last issue about the cooling coils being stolen from the air conditioner units on the roof, and how I expected the repairs would cost me $1000 more than the insurance company would cover. The repair company recommended that I repair the unit that was only 8 months old, but strongly recommended that I replace the unit that was over 15 years old. The insurance company refused to go along with the recommendation of the repair company and was only willing to cover the estimated repair cost on both unit (less my $1000 deductible). I talked to another area businessman who owns several properties in the area that were hit by the same copper thieves, and he said that each building had a different insurance company and only one insurance company refused to follow the advice of the repair experts, and that was the same company that I had. I decided to go with the advice of the experts instead of the advice of the insurance company and had the old unit replaced. That turned my $1000 deductible into a $4000 deductible. I'm now getting bids from other insurance companies for next year which starts in late May.

With expenses constantly going up and sales not keeping pace, we're going to have to raise our minimum price on used books from $2.50 (where the price has been for many years) to $3.00 starting June 1. Since very few books have been issued with a cover price below $5.95 over the last 20 years, the price increase will mainly impact those buying used older paperbacks and used magazines. If you're looking for some of those older items, you might want to get together a want-list and try to fill in your gaps before June 1.

We recently restocked with T-shirts and sweatshirts. For both T-shirts and sweatshirts, we have some with Uncle Hugo's logo on the front and Uncle Edgar's logo on the back and

As usual, we had lots more new titles than we had space for in the paper newsletter. Many books had their descriptions shortened, and most paranormal romances, gaming related titles, Doctor Who titles, kids and young adult books, reissues, and non-fiction titles were eliminated from the paper newsletter, but full information is on our website. There are also more science fiction and mystery reviews on the website.

Short Recommendations by Don Blyly

Redshirts by John Scalzi ($24.99, due early June, signing at Uncle Hugo's Saturday, June 23, 1-2 pm) is enormous fun, at the expense of Hollywood.

Freshly graduated Ensign Andrew Dahl is thrilled to be assigned to the Intrepid, flagship of the Universal Union since the year 2456. But Andrew and the other new ensigns soon notice that every Away Mission involves some form of lethal confrontation, which always results in the death of at least one low-ranking crew member. They also notice that the more experienced crew members always hide whenever a high ranking officer comes looking for people to take on an Away Mission. Eventually, they learn that the fate of these Away Missions seem to somehow be related to an ancient television show produced centuries before on a planet called Earth. They must find a method to travel back in time, by a means as scientifically implausible as many of the Away Missions, to confront the people in charge of the ancient television show.
